Check if the svchost file is present in its default location. If yes, copy it to the default location and ask you if it is OK to run the svchost process in order to launch your applications. If not, ask you what you want to do about the missing file. Keep in mind that svchost is a very important file for Windows and should be available in its default location. The program is available as a standalone executable file and has no external dependencies. Find out more about how it works and what you will get in the README file that comes with the download.New Hampshire basketball: 13 takes from the sidelines When the University of New Hampshire basketball team is at its best, it's exciting to watch. This team, though, is better than good. It's dominant. For a team that, to this point, has struggled to score, the Wildcats have been more than impressive. UNH ranks among the best teams in the country in scoring defense, rebounding and turnover margin. And while the teams around the league are focused on games that are at least somewhat competitive, UNH has now put together six straight victories by an average of 26.3 points. Over the course of that stretch, it hasn't mattered who is on the court for the Wildcats: freshman forward Derrick Gordon, junior guard Michael Shabazz and seniors Jason Denney and Tre Levesque are all featured players, and sophomore guard B.J. Johnson has seen time at point guard. In fact, UNH coach Bill Herrion likes to mix and match his starting lineup so much that he has called this team the "Jackets" in past stops at Binghamton and Maine. With that level of competition, a player's role will vary. Here's a look at what three Wildcats have meant to the team's success so far: Tre Levesque: UNH coach Bill Herrion moved Levesque to the starting lineup Monday at Colgate. Although Levesque has been in the middle of the action, he's been outscored in 12 of 16 games this season. Nevertheless, he leads the team in scoring, field goal percentage and rebounding (8.2 rpg). For Levesque, being in the starting lineup means not having to spend time behind a ball screen and being able to get open. He's been especially effective against the 6-foot-11 Colgate forward and

SvcHostFix is a tool designed to improve the performance of your computer by fixing a common Windows service related error. It will check the svchost.exe file on your computer and locate the original service. If the path of the svchost executable is changed, the SvcHostFix will restore the correct path and make your computer run all the essential processes that it needs. A: You can't safely use Microsoft tools like sc delete svchost.exe to remove it. This is documented and a leading cause of file and registry corruption. Instead, unregister svchost.exe and remove it from the Registry. You can do this by running the Unregister-Service process, but the following advice applies: You'll need to know the exact path of the executable. If you don't know it you can find it with the Find-Service and Regedit tools mentioned by @Matt and @nate. You need to run the process with "local admin" permissions. If you don't know how to do this you can find out by using the SysInternals Process Explorer utility. Update: I've since discovered that this issue is caused by a Windows 10 upgrade that became damaged. I've spent more time on this than I would like to admit and have confirmed that: SvcHostFix will not work Once you find the correct executable (if you can locate it), unregistering it from the registry using the Unregister-Service process will return the OS to a working state. Please see my answer below for more details. There are a few alternative tools, such as svchost remover, that allow you to do the above. A: To install with 7Zip: 7z x svchostremover.exe To uninstall with 7Zip: 7z x svchostremover.exe -x To uninstall it programmatically: using (Process process = new Process()) { process.StartInfo.FileName = "svchostremover.exe"; process.StartInfo.UseShellExecute = false; process.StartInfo.RedirectStandardError = true; process.StartInfo.RedirectStandardOutput = true; process.Start(); //Check status
